Locating Industry Resources for Groundhog Job Shadow Day Events

Cisco Systems provides many resources in support of Groundhog Job Shadow Day. To serve a large number of schools and events, it is important to explore other local industry resources.

Cisco Systems offices

Many Cisco sales offices across the country have already agreed to host students or work with Local Academies. You can also search for offices near you: http://www.cisco.com/ciscodotcom/toolkit/offices/us_offices.html

Cisco partners

Cisco relies on a vast network of resellers and systems integrators to serve customers. These independent businesses are great resources for this event. Use the following link to locate a Cisco partner: http://tools.cisco.com/WWChannels/LOCATR/jsp/partner_locator.jsp

Cisco videos

Consider including short, informative videos at your Groundhog Job Shadow Day event:

End users

You can find IT resources in your community through retailers, hospitals, government agencies, and local businesses. Ask representatives to deliver presentations or provide a tour of their facilities.

Information Technology Professional Association

Use the following link to search for an IT association in your area: <http://www.aitp.org/organization/chapters/chapters.jsp>

Chambers of Commerce

Your local Chamber of Commerce is a great way to identify companies that can support Groundhog Job Shadow Day events:

Post-secondary Networking Academy representatives

Consider using post-secondary resources if you are a high school. Your Regional Academy can also help:

School district or college technology chief

You can also find helpful IT resources at your school. Ask them to be involved.

Vendors

There may be vendors that sell software and hardware to your school or school district. Contact the person at your school who is responsible for purchasing IT equipment and software or managing your IT services and ask for information about local vendors.
