

Your blueprint for future success

A guide for government

Where will your organisation be in five years?

Lower costs, increased productivity, heightened security and greater agility – our breadth of services can help make that a reality today so you can focus on where you want to go tomorrow.

1

Technology is at the foundation of everything you're trying to build.

Of your successes so far, how many are the result of collaboration? Our market-leading networks, secure (wired and wireless) connectivity and extensive collaboration suite make it easy to share ideas and information throughout your organisation and beyond. Improving your communication channels helps you harness the power of your people and achieve more with less, by streamlining operations and enabling flexible and remote working.

2

BIG DATA

With big data comes big possibilities.

To make the right decision you need the right information. Our technology makes big data tangible, so you can feel confident that every choice you make is well informed. Our predictive analytics and big data capabilities analyse patterns and monitor incidents as they unfold so you can track your performance and accurately predict demand for government services. The decisions you'll make in the future depend on the data we're collecting today.

3

Modernisation made easy.

Digital transformation means moving from old, outdated legacy systems to solutions that reconfigure processes and cut paperwork. Our next generation data center solutions, application lifecycle management and enterprise-class networking, ensure new systems integrate fully with your existing technology, with no data compromise during the transition.

4

Security for today and tomorrow.

How can organisations be open and yet more secure? Integrated systems, flexible working, IoT and improved data sharing all facilitate better public services – but also make government organisations susceptible to cyber-attacks. Our comprehensive security portfolio minimises the risks for your organisation.

5

Multi-cloud options for every area of government.

Cloud services are a vital part of any digital transformation process, streamlining onerous processes and helping bring new citizen and business services online efficiently and securely. Our extensive cloud solutions portfolio means we can support every step of your cloud adoption journey.

Stay one step ahead

Wherever you are in your government transformation journey, we can help you stay one step ahead.

Contact us to find out more:
Cisco.co.uk/ukigovernment

