Adding a New User Group

Configuring one or more groups is optional. Many businesses find that having a mailbox for a group, called a general-delivery mailbox, is very convenient. Members of a group can retrieve voice messages left in the general-delivery mailbox. For example, a Customer Service mailbox could be configured to receive messages from customers, and anyone assigned to a Customer Service group could retrieve the messages. Members of the general-delivery mailbox can be individual users or other groups. Individual users also have their individual mailboxes, and groups that are members of another group have their own mailboxes.

A group has its own set of members, but a group can also be assigned as a member or an owner of one or more other groups. If a group is assigned as an owner of another group, any individual member of the owner group has privileges as an owner of the owned group. For example, if the Administrator group is added as an owner of the Technical Support group, any individual member of the Administrator group can add, modify, or delete members of the Technical Support group. Additionally, individual users that do not belong to another group can be added as owners of the Technical Support group.
